

SENATE SHOULD OVERTURN CALIFORNIA'S SALES BAN ON NEW GAS CARS Which Will Impact Car Buyers Nationwide

All Dealers - Call Your Senators NOW

California's zero emission vehicle (ZEV) mandate starts this fall and would eventually ban sales of new gas cars. This gas car ban will distort the vehicle market in all states. The House recently passed H.J.Res. 88, legislation to stop California's ban on new gas cars by a bipartisan vote of 246-164 with 35 Democrats voting in support.

A Senate vote on the House-passed legislation, H.J. Res 88, could occur as soon as tomorrow.

Despite media reports, Congress can overturn California's new gas car ban using the Congressional Review Act.

Vote "YES" on H.J.Res.88

- H.J.Res. 88 will stop California's zero emission vehicle (ZEV) mandate, which starts later this year in several states, and would eventually ban sales of new gas (including hybrid) cars. This rule will negatively impact the vehicle market in all states.
- California's ban on gas vehicles will limit consumer choice and result in higher car prices for all Americans, not just those in the affected states. Affordable gas models are expected to be the first to be rationed in affected states. Because California's mandate forces automakers to deliver EVs for sale in states irrespective of consumer demand, prices for new and used gas cars will have to rise throughout the country.
- Many Americans cannot afford or conveniently charge an EV. The primary reasons for sluggish EV growth are: 1) the average transaction price for an EV is $59,205, while the new vehicle average transaction price is $47,462; 2) an inadequate public charging infrastructure; 3) long charging times (most public chargers take 4-10 hours to charge); and 4) the average price of gasoline is $3.18 a gallon.
